Charles Sumner, of Massachusetts: Delivered in the Senate of the United States, May 31, 1872 The sundry civil appropriation bill coming up as unfinished business. Mr. Sumner moved to postpone indefinitely its consideration, and proceeded to review the report of the Committee on the Sale of Arms to French agents. Mr. Sumner then said: Mr. President: I have no hesitation in declaring myself a member of the Republican party and one of the straitest of the sect. I doubt if any Senator can point to earlier or more constant service in its behalf. I began at the beginning, and from that early day have never failed to sustain its candidates and to advance its principles. For these I have labored always by speech and vote, in the Senate and elsewhere, at first with few only, but at last as success began to dawn then with multitudes flocking forward. In this cause I never asked who were my associates or how many they would number. In the consciousness of right I was willing to be alone. To such a party, with which so much of thy life is intertwined, I have no common attachment. Not without regret can I see it suffer; not without a pang can I see it changed from its original character, for such a change is death. Therefore do not ask, with no common feeling, that the peril which menaces it may pass away. I stood by its cradle; let me not follow its hearse. Origin and Object of the Republican Party. Turning hack to its birth, I recall a speech of my own at a State convention...
